EDITORIAL

Hello members,

Sorry about the long space in between newsletters but I am sure you will agree this edition is well worth the wait, as it is filled with information and news of the club.

The AGM was held recently and with it came many new members onto the committee and it is great to have fresh faces and new ideas and lots of energy and enthusiasm, of course also there are still the longer serving experienced committee members who have worked very hard over the years and it is great that they continue to guide the newbies.

In this newsletter you will see that one of our fundraising ideas is to have a quiz night, which should be fun because I know there are a few people out there who know absolutely EVERYTHING so that should make for an easy win for them.

There are other great ideas in the pipeline too and some of them you can read about further on and some of them you will just have to wait and see.

RIBBON PARADE – it's been a wee while since we have had one of these so to make up for that we are going to do a double banger 2 in 1 – yes exciting isn't it – so get your dogs out and be there. A great opportunity to get some practice in before the Invercargill show.

We have recently purchased a new agility tunnel – I was told that the old one that we have been using is probably about 20 years old so it was certainly time for an upgrade.

Don't forget our sponsors Pets pit stop for lots and lots of your pet needs and also Eukanuba for all your dog's dietary needs.

This is the first newsletter some of you will have received via email and I'm sure you will agree it is nice to see some colour in it and of a size that is easy to read. If you are not receiving it via email and would like to then please let me know.

Enjoy reading and as always let me know what you think and/or what you would like to see.

VICE PRESIDENTS PEN

SIGSL President's Report July 2012

The AGM is now behind us. Thank you to all those club members who came along and congratulations to the winners of the annual awards. Thanks also to the outgoing committee for arranging supper afterwards.

This year sees several new committee members but following on from our first meeting there is a lot of enthusiasm and jobs have been distributed in a way which I hope utilises skills of individuals to the maximum. Many of you may not be aware but it is essential for all office bearers of the club to be members of NZKC so for those new people taking on these positions there is a commitment to join the Kennel Club and I thank them for that. The only requirement of other committee members is to be a member of SIGSL.

A ribbon parade is being run in August and notices for that will be sent out soon to members. While these are official NZKC events, it is not necessary for dogs to be NZKC registered, nor do the owners have to be NZKC members. Neutered and spayed dogs and bitches can be shown and long coats alongside normal coats. Dogs that have attained the title of breed champion cannot be shown at the parade but they can compete against each other in a Champions stakes class. There will also be other stakes classes and we hope something for everyone that weekend. I personally cannot be there on the day but I hope that all of you that do go along have a great time.

The end of year shows in 2012 are the November 10th and 11th and we have Fran Farley and Ian Urie judging. We have been allocated one Championship show and one Open show. There have been several litters born over the past few months so we hope to see some babies and puppies coming through at these shows.

Show catering has gone well this year led by Jane and a team of volunteers. She tells me it is a continuous learning curve judging just how much in both quantity and variety is needed to ensure that not only is the venture profitable but also that we do not have food to dispose of at the end of the weekend.

Training continues on Monday nights in RDA and it is pleasing to see good use of the facility not only by SIGSL but also by some all breed obedience competitors. I hope it is inspiring for those members just starting out training their dog watching some of these people working their dogs through the various exercises.

Plans for the next National are moving ahead and I hope there will be confirmation of a Breed Judge within the next couple of months. We will arrange to have new information put on the SIGSL website as it becomes available.

Committee is exploring various avenues for fundraising and grants to cover costs at shows. There is expertise amongst committee at writing these applications which will hopefully give us some advantage when our requests are evaluated.

Liz Wilkinson
SIGSL President

The committee would like to extend a warm welcome to the following new members –

Tony Jarvis, Steven and Christine Collins

CLUB NOTICE BOARD

FUNDRAISING

Recent fundraising has consisted of Security work for Laings which involves watching over a building on their truck unit overnight, there has been a team of about five main volunteers to do this work and since November 2011 we have done 194.75 hours and raised $3895.00 for the club. There will be more of this work coming up from time to time and if you are able to help please let a committee member know – Fundraising is not ONLY the responsibility of the committee.

The Fundraising subcommittee is looking at organising a Quiz night please keep this in mind and get first dibs on your smart friends and get your team sorted now. We will email you with details once they are confirmed and you can also keep an eye on the website for more information.

With the hard earned money that we have been making we are in the long overdue process of updating some of our equipment. First on the list was a new agility tunnel and after much sourcing we were able to purchase one from Agility stuff in Taupo it is of good quality and has been imported from U.S.A and has N.Z designed and made entrance and exit support systems, you can see photos further on in the magazine with our dogs trialling it out.

GRANTS

CHRISTCHURCH

CITY COUNCIL · YOUR PEOPLE · YOUR CITY

We recently applied to the Christchurch City Council for a grant under the small sports event fund and successfully received $1000.00 to go towards the April and November shows.

We also applied to Pub Charity for the cost to cover the hiring of the RDA building over the winter months for training – we were successful in acquiring the full amount of $805.00.

We are very grateful for this funding and it certainly makes things easier for the club.

Lower Jaw Problems

(Re -Printed from German Shepherd Dog National Review – July 1982 No 14.)

Translated by Udo Giertolla from the SV Magazine

Numerous articles have been written and many discussions have taken place with regard to the dentition faults within our breed. At one stage or another, nearly all breeders have discussed the inherent problems of missing teeth and the consequent problems that arise, this decreasing the working value of the breed. All judges, whether Show or obedience, are so concerned with this problem that no responsible judge/breeder/owner is prepared to accept any animal with missing teeth. By taking this stand it is hoped that the future of the breed will be assured of improvement with regard to dentition and the jaw.

When we talk about the jaw itself and specifically about the teeth, it is not with the intent of giving the impression that both should be judged independently of each other. The jaw and the teeth together build an inseparable unit and all faults within the jaw eventually result in disturbances in the growth of the teeth.

The Breed Officials of the SV have been for decades taken great care that the jaw does adhere to our breed standard. This is extremely important when one is dealing with a working dog like the German Shepherd Dog. The main weapon of our breed would have to be its mouth, which must be capable of fulfilling definite functions e.g. when capturing a criminal the dog must certainly catch the offender, but he must also be able to release his victim as soon as ordered.

At first this may appear an obvious statement, but there are many different breeds who, can easily grab an offender but are unable, due to the rigid structure of the jaw, to release their victim. Such a situation in a working dog is extremely undesirable as it could be dangerous for both the offender and the dog. At the same time, we can not accept a jaw which is too weak and does not allow the dog to have a secure grip on an article, for sometimes the occasion can arrive where the dog is required to hold an article for quite a lengthy period of time e.g. the SV Obedience Rules contain commands that require a dog to hold an article tightly and then release on command. A dog bites can only be effective if the lower jaw is sufficiently strong. The upper jaw is a rigid bone and merely acts as a buffer for the lower jaw. The same applies to the human jaw. It is our lower jaw and teeth that move and chew against a fixed upper jaw. It would therefore be ridiculous to have a strong upper jaw and weak lower jaw. The muscles necessary to chew cannot develop on a weak lower jaw. These muscles require constant use to develop and form a correct jaw line.

An insufficient bite function will also weaken the jaw. Because of this the bite functions should be fostered in both puppies and young dogs. This is easily achieved by playing with young pups and encouraging them to bite firmly e.g. on a towel, old shoe, jute sack etc. Likewise a juicy bone twice a week will also benefit a young dog's jaw. Modern toys made of rubber or plastic while fine for some toy breeds, do not serve the purpose of developing a good enough jaw and bite required by a working dog. To develop the necessary firm bite, the muzzle should possess sufficient width at the end. Occasionally, we see some dogs with a very pointed "snipey" muzzle. If we carefully examine the teeth of these dogs, especially their incisors, we find the majority have very crowded mouths, where it seems these teeth have to fight for space – an irregularity which often results in extra pressure and pain in the jaw. Eventually we will find positional faults which could hinder the dog’s usefulness, as well as discouraging the dog from using its mouth correctly.

Such a bite lacks firmness and these dogs do not perform very well at their combative instincts test releasing the victim or protective clothing far too willingly.

Another fault with the pointy “snipey” head is that it destroys the distinctive shepherd like expression of the breed. At one stage it was suggested to set a fixed measurement for the lower jaw distance between both sets of canine teeth. If the measured distance did not comply with the set standard, the dogs head would be judged as snipey and therefore incorrect.

In theory this sounds fine, but in practice there are many difficulties to overcome e.g. the actual size of the animal varies even between the same sex as well as between dogs and bitches. Therefore the distance between the canine teeth can be quite variable. Likewise if we were to experiment by feeding our dog’s completely alien food, we could develop an animal where the chew muscles were ill-developed. Consequently the lower jaw would be quite weak, with the roots of the teeth weakened and the entire jaw structure not providing the necessary anchorage.

Eventually the teeth would become smaller and the once normally tight lips would develop into loose, ill-fitting lips which also would contribute to the lack of correct expression in our breed. Often an animal with loose lips, does in fact have a weak lower jaw. This problem can occur rather quickly between generations, however one must be aware of the normal lips which can be compared with a fold. This fold must be present in order to give the dog the opportunity to fully open its mouth for any purpose e.g. yawning, biting.

In conclusion, it is very necessary that every serious shepherd breeder and owner be aware continually of the lower jaw and its associated problems, for the benefit of the breed. Also remember that some lower jaw problems if detected early enough in young dogs, can be corrected with the appropriate treatment

PUPPY PRESCHOOL

The club recently started running a puppy preschool with a structured puppy course the cost was $40.00 for a six week course which is great value for money compared to the price you would pay at a vet type puppy preschool.

Of course everyone thinks they have the most obedient puppy and there is some friendly fun rivalry between the group but the graduation day test will tell the truth. It is our aim to change the general public's view of the German Shepherd dog to one that is not to be feared – the only way to do this is to have well trained and obedient dogs, starting at puppy age. We will continue to run these puppy courses as demand dictates, please recommend the course to anyone who may purchase a German Shepherd puppy.

A NOTE FROM FERGUS

Hello People,

Well it's been a wee while since I've written to you all and gosh do I have lots to tell you. Let me start with the April show – the boss and my new handler and some old fella that bosses me around a fair bit had been working with me a lot and trying to get me to pay attention to them sometimes I listened, sometimes not so much. So the day of the show came and I went into the ring with my lady handler she is such a lovely lass and she did do a good job of handling me under the circumstances – the circumstances were that I'm a stubborn wee beep beep.....(well that's what I heard them say when they thought I wasn't paying attention – which to be fair is often) so that day I was placed last – I'm kind of getting used to being at the back of the pack so – ya know – whatever!!!..... anyway the next day there was a change in my handler and the old fella took me in the ring, well I did behave so much better coz he has a growly voice and I pay a bit more attention to that than I do to the sweet ladies voice, well I did so much better that I surprised quite a few people and I didn't end up in last place, I was still down the back but not last last. To every ones amazement though I was awarded an excellent grading, but then they took that away as it was pointed out that I'm too young to receive an excellent grade so then they said I could have a very good grade, but then that got changed again to a very good select grade as that is the equivalent to an excellent for my age group and the dog that was behind me got an excellent so I HAD to have the equivalent or better than him – makes perfect sense even though some people got there knickers in a twist about it all and the boss had to have a wee chat with the show manager – end result I got my very first medal. Ok - so I proved that I have some potential and so then started the real intensive training. They tried lots of different ways to train me and the boss found that I didn't like a water bottle squirted at me and so she started carrying one at training and I got a squirt in the face when I started having 'issues' with other dogs, also the growly ole fella would come over and give me a big telling off and I just shrink down and hang my head in shame.

The June triple show arrived, the judge came from South Africa and even though I did play up a wee bit I WOWED the heck out of everyone and I was placed third – and yes there were more than three dogs in the class actually there were seven. My growly handler got told by the judge that he intimidates me in the ring.....ha ha ha ...if only he knew what I used to be like in the ring and why the growly handler has to be like that with me.....After the show the judge came and had a look at me and thought I was a pretty awesome fella, the boss told him I was difficult to handle and he said not to worry about it and that I will improve in time and that he would love to handle a dog like me, so my lady handler said “great, what are you doing tomorrow” He very politely declined and said sorry he was busy. The next two days I was ok and getting better and better with my behaviour in the ring, but those Aussie Judges didn't think I was spectacular enough to warrant an up the front placing and I got fourth and fifth – Bloody Aussies!!! .....So that's that for shows for a wee while, boss is contemplating taking me to Invercargill in September or if not then then it will be November before the next one, man I'm going to be super awesome by then just you wait and see. Til next time people, be kind to yourselves and to dogs – Fergus

Interview With The Dog

the silence is broken

We asked a dog to pull aside the shroud of secrecy and be interviewed. He asked that his name not be used, but for the good of all dogs he agreed to share these ten insights with humans.

- 1 My life is likely to last 10 to 15 years. Any separation from you will be painful to me. Remember that before you buy me.
  - 2 Give me some time to understand what you want from me.
  - 3 Place your trust in me. It's crucial to my well-being.
  - 4 Don't be angry with me for long, and don't isolate me as punishment. You have your work, your entertainment and your friends. I only have you.
  - 5 Talk to me sometimes. Even if I don't understand your words - I understand your voice.
  - 6 Be aware that however you treat me, I will not be able to forget it.
  - 7 Remember before you hit me that I have powerful teeth, but I choose not to use them.
  - 8 Before you scold me for being uncooperative, obstinate or lazy, ask yourself if something might be wrong with me. Perhaps I'm not getting the right food, or I've been out in the sun too long, or my heart is getting older and weaker.
  - 9 Take care of me when I get old. You'll be old one day.
  - 10 Go with me on difficult journeys. Never say: "I can't watch-it's too painful. Everything is easier when you are with me.
- And through it all:
Remember that I love you.

BREEDING

If you are contemplating dog breeding, there are certain questions that you will need to ask yourself before proceeding:

Have I the time to devote to a litter until the puppies are old enough to go to their new homes, which is usually around eight weeks?

Am I knowledgeable enough to advise new owners about the various aspects of caring for their puppies, including rearing, diet, training and health problems? Can I afford to pay for the recommended health tests for the bitch prior to mating her and, where necessary, her litter?

Do I know enough to help the bitch during the whelping, if necessary?

Can I afford to pay for a caesarean should the dam have difficulty whelping the litter?

Could I cope with a very large litter of, say, 10 or 12 puppies?

Do I have sufficient knowledge to rear the litter correctly, including on worming, vaccinations and socialisation?

Would I be able to find good homes for the puppies?

Am I in a position to take back or re-home any puppies if it becomes necessary?

RESPONSIBLE BREEDING MEANS.....

- Responsible breeding means NOT breeding for profit i.e Puppy Farming. Breeding is a hobby not a business.
- Know the typical genetic diseases for your breed. Test for them, and do not breed a dog that may pass on serious genetic disease.
- Get an education in basic genetics to help you understand why two dogs that are perfectly healthy can produce puppies that will suffer serious genetic disease.
- An outside eye will help both you and your puppy buyers know that your opinions are more than just wishful thinking.
